PRESENTED BY NATIONAL CENTER ON SEXUAL EXPLOITATION

OUTLINE OF CONCERNS

1. Pornography is creating a public health crisis, deeply effecting the sexual health and wellbeing of children and youth.
1. Most schools in America give no guidance or education related to pornography, digital citizenship, or media literacy. Most teachers in America receive no official training on media literacy or on the risks of Internet pornography seeping into the Internet-connected tools they use in the classroom.
2. Many of America's schools use ineffective filtering software and do not have a dedicated or trained individual who oversees these filters.
3. Some schools are issuing personal devices to students (as young as Kindergarten) without effective filters & restrictions in place. Parents are often not notified or not educated on the potential dangers.
1. Most K-12 schools subscribe to online research databases which are filled with pornography and sexually explicit material, bypassing the school filters. Examples from EBSCO Information Services, available in thousands of schools in the U.S. included here.

INEFFECTIVE FILTERING

Many schools employ ineffective filters only on the devices and not on the WiFi.

The filters are often not set up correctly and then not monitored regularly for potential loopholes and updating.

Frequently, there is no assigned school staff to monitor the filters and to alert administrators and parents when a student has accessed pornographic or other damaging content.

There is usually no accountability for the students and no one discusses the fact that a student has accessed this material.

Many schools make the argument that students have signed an “appropriate-use” policy for the Internet and argue that is enough

PERSONAL DEVICES

Some schools are giving tablets and computers to students to take home.

The devices are often not filtered or monitored.

It is not common for parents to be notified about the devices and if notified, they are usually not educated on the potential dangers – pornography, violence, cyber-bullying, etc.

Many schools are arguing that filtering school-issued devices and educating parents is not their responsibility.

ONLINE RESEARCH DATABASES

Schools are increasingly supplementing their curriculum by assigning students to use online research databases.

ALL of the databases available to K-12 schools checked by NCOSE contained sexually explicit materials.

Providers include:

- EBSCO Information Services
- Cengage
- ProQuest
- OverDrive

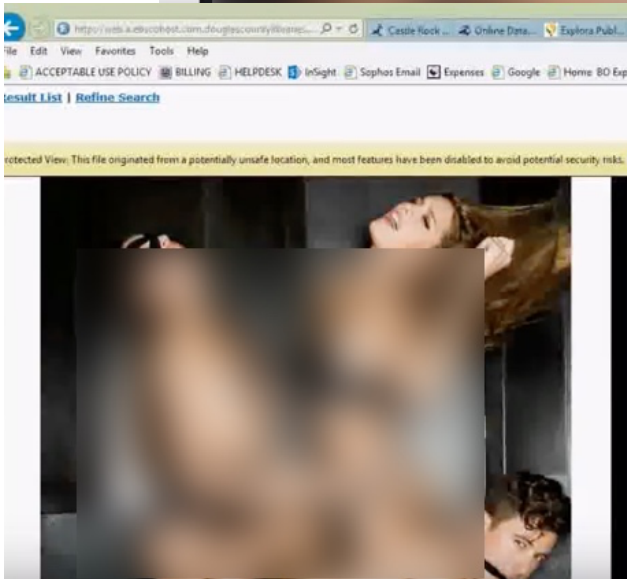

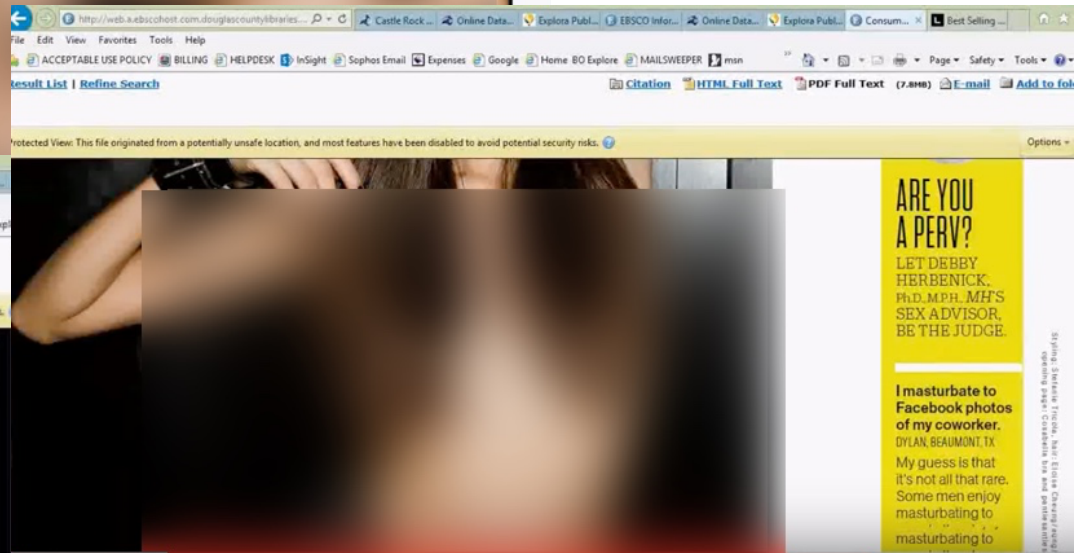

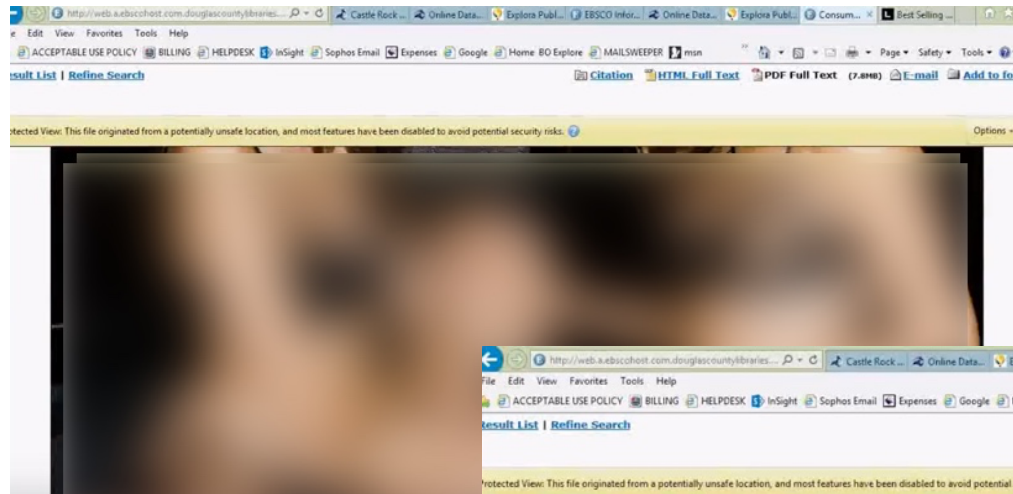

These databases market their products to schools and libraries as curriculum- and age-appropriate.

The databases are only filtered based on Lexile measurements, a system that evaluates the reading level of material. Pornography consists mostly of low-lexile words.

4/ Anal sex is no longer that big a deal between partners.

TRUE. Surveys find the back door increasingly open: reasons include changing norms, the depiction of anal sex in pornography, and a greater willingness to admit to the behavior, says Kimberly McBride, Ph.D., an assistant professor of public health at the University of Toledo. In McBride's 2008 survey of heterosexual men, 18 percent said they'd had anal sex in the past.

5/ People mostly agree on what is and isn't kinky.

FALSE. One person's kink can be another's yawn. "For some people, woman-on-top is kinky," says Carol Queen, author of Exhibitionism for the Shy. Here's what we can agree on: A repertoire of just three or four sex positions no longer does the trick. So ease into kink—a new position, say, or sex in a new location. And props help, says New York City sex therapist

6/ Pinch her as often as you're willing to be pinched.

TRUE. The key to success is to enlist her as a fellow conspirator. "Good sex involves compromise," says Mark. "Shoot for an even split between giving and taking." Some people balk at role playing, dirty talk, and bondage because they fear they won't know what to do or say. Start with simple verbal fantasizing—that is, having sex while talking about more explicit 7/ You're probably going to wake up with a few marks.

FALSE. Sure, some impact play, such as spanking, could have temporary side effects. The key is to know where to hit. "You want to be over flesh or muscle, not bone," says Queen. "Aim for the lower part of the butt; that engages more nerves and makes it more enjoyable." Other good spots to aim for: the shoulders and upper back. Queen says, "Try

1/ "Kinky" means your sex life feels like a Saw sequel.

FALSE. Dabbling in deviance does not have to involve leather and nipple clamps. It's the newness and not the fear that's stimulating, says Gail Saltz, M.D., a sex therapist in New York City. "So if it's Fifty Shades you're after, you might put on some of the costumes, just to get a feel for it," she says. The most common kinks are the least freaky

2/ You need to be a little twisted to enjoy this stuff.

TRUE. Well, kind of. Many people like a bit of rough play. In 2013, the sex toy company Lovehoney found that nearly three out of four customers had tied up a partner, one in five had used a gag, and one in six said bondage was part of their routine. But a more productive gauge of sexual success is if what you're doing makes 3/ You two must discuss new kinks before trying them.

FALSE. But then again, it's never a bad idea to have a quick chat if you're rookies. Otherwise, just let it happen... but slowly. Simply being more playful in the bedroom can act as a catalyst. "Being flirtatious and dropping subtle hints can be better than jumping in all the way," says Marianne Brandon, Ph.D., a psychologist

By ABIOLA ABRAMS

If you were fortunate enough to attend a sex education class as a teenager, you probably learned a lot about the technical aspects of intercourse (i.e., what goes where, how babies are conceived and, of course, the best practices for safe sex). Now that you're older, it's time to focus on the fun, and a great way to learn anything new is to watch, right? EBONY rounded up a few flicks to help you create your ultimate hit list:

Shame-free tips on increasing your sexual health and pleasure

While this is advice for those who identify as "bottoms/" anyone who has anal sex should have an understanding of the process involved in successful bottoming. It will help you be a better "top" and positively affect overall sexual experiences.

The act of bottoming is a true art, and whether it's your first attempt or you've been experimenting with it for quite some time, analyzing your readiness and the proper techniques not only allow you to reach heightened sexual pleasure, but also enable safe and enduring practices.

If you've never tried bottoming, but you're curious, let's just address straight away that it won't always just happen right then and there. Successful and pleasurable bottoming takes time and practice through dilation exercises, training of your self-awareness, and control of the pelvic floor.

The good news? Bottoming shouldn't hurt. Of course, it maybe uncomfortable at first and you might initially question how there could ever be pleasure in it -- something that happens with vaginal sex the first time as well-but like anything it takes practice, patience, and following a few simple guidelines to enhance this sexual practice. I often tell patients that great bottoms have been doing it for quite some time, with many first experiencing it in their youth. Unfortunately, no one showed us the right way to bottom in our high school sexual education class. Still, it's never too late to learn, and we all enjoy new and positive sexual experiences. Here's my 101 guide to bottoming:

BEGIN WITH DILATION

Get yourself an anal trainer kit, and start training for dilation two to three times a week (for as little as five minutes each time). Use a water-based lubricant and start with the smallest plug. Insert just to the point of pressure. Hold it there for a few seconds, then try to engage the muscles. Allow yourself to relax before removing the plug, then re-lubricate and re-insert to the point of pressure. Repeating this process will prove successful over time, so don't get discouraged if the first time you only get a small portion of the tip in. Repeat the process three to five times. The key is to remember there are three sets of muscles that need to relax for a successful entry. Think of it as a tunnel, and the entire tunnel needs to be a well-lubed cylinder. We don't advise inserting the entire length of the plug and leaving it in on the first try because Innocent & unrelated search terms are yielding sexually explicit articles in the results.

EXAMPLE: Grade 7 search for “biology” yielded article “Orgasms for All”
This article included links to hardcore pornography websites and suggestions for related search terms which were categorically filled with explicit materials and links to pornography websites.

Often, when you click on the links to the pornography websites within the EBSCO product, it opens up within the EBSCO browser, bypassing the school Internet filters.

The screenshot shows the Science Reference Center search interface. At the top, there are navigation tabs for 'New Search', 'Publications', 'Dictionary', 'Subjects', and 'More'. A search bar contains the text 'orgasms for all' and a green 'Search' button. Below the search bar, there are links for 'Basic Search', 'Advanced Search', and 'Search History'. The search results section displays the title 'Orgasms for All!' in blue. Below the title, the author is listed as 'Wexler, Sarah Z.' and the source as 'Women's Health; Nov2015, Vol. 12 Issue 9, p112-115, 4p, 4 Color Photographs'. The document type is 'Article'. The benchmarks are 'Life Sciences -- Biology -- Human Biology' and 'Life Sciences -- Principles of Heredity -- Reproduction'. The subject terms are 'Female orgasm', 'Female reproductive organs', 'Sexual excitement', 'Clitoris', and 'Female ejaculation'. "That's sweet," she said and gave him a hug.

Clapp felt another hard-on coming on, but it would have to wait. His cock was feeling sore now, it burned when he peed and a milky substance was leaking out from the tip. He dropped Nancy off at McMurdy's. Miss Felicia gave her a good whipping and let him watch. It made his heart feel good. When he got home, he poured himself a tall glass of whiskey and soaked his cock in it. Later, he drained the glass and was ready to meet the world again.

"Murderer!" the priest said pointing at Clapp, so the sheriff plugged him too. He never liked papists.

"You're comin' with me Nancy. Hog City needs you."

He pulled the naked girl onto his horse and rode back out of the church. He fucked her three times on the way back to town, once while they were still riding.

Q: My partner and I have a great relationship and enjoy trying new things in the bedroom. We keep hearing about sexual role-play, and are interested to learn more about it. Is it like cosplay, only sexual? Is it something you do in private, or are there clubs, like with BDSM?

A: Basically, role-play is no more than an adult version of the make-believe games of childhood. Many children have a dress-up box, and play at being cops and robbers, princesses, or mummies and daddies. My friends and I became deeply involved in these games, inventing complex plots.

For most of us this game continues into adulthood. Merely choosing what to wear from day to day is a form of role-play. A business suit is a costume that puts you in a different role to the one you play in jeans and a T-shirt on the weekend. A uniform firmly places its wearer in a specific role.

The world is being swept by a specific kind of role-play - cosplay. People dress as characters from comics, anime movies, and other "geek" fictions. Their costumes are elaborate, and often expensive. There are huge conventions as well as smaller playgroups. While it is not overtly sexual, the characters represented usually have a sexual dimension. Sexual role-play is simply an extension of these games. Wearing sexy lingerie, or a French maid's outfit are all forms of taking on a role that excites you. The book, The Ultimate Guide to Kink, BDSM, Role Play and the Erotic Edge by Tristan Taormino, demonstrates this continuum. Here, role-play refers to a particular kind of sex game.

The online sex info site, kinkly.com describes it thus: "Role playing is a wonderful way for couples to explore different fantasies or fetishes. It provides a way to explore something taboo. For example, a consenting couple can pretend to be a schoolgirl and teacher, a boundary that could not be crossed in real life."

If you are one of those people who cringe when they receive an invitation to a fancy dress party, role-play is not for you. If you enjoy dressing up, but are not particularly imaginative, you might feel safer hiring a costume.

You can play with role-play at home. However, games like "sex with a stranger" can start out in a public place, and end up at a hotel. There are events like the Saints and Sinners erotic fancy dress balls, or the Discovery plays parties.

Sex is adult play. Allow your imagination to take you to fantasy places, and have fun.

Middle School: Article discusses the phenomenon of “sugar dating,” in which an older participant provides financial support to a young participant in return for companionship and/or sex. Documentary “Daddies Date Babies” is recommended by the article.

When looking up “prostitution” search term in EBSCO product, Middle Search Plus, dozens of articles advocating and glamorizing prostitution-type activity are recommended to middle school students.

The screenshot shows the EBSCOhost search interface. At the top, there is a navigation bar with links for 'New Search', 'Publications', 'Subjects', 'Dictionary', and 'More'. On the right, there are links for 'Sign In', 'Folder', 'Preferences', 'Languages', 'Help', and 'Exit'. The search bar contains the term 'prostitution' and a 'Search' button. Below the search bar, there are links for 'Basic Search', 'Advanced Search', and 'Search History'. The main content area displays the search results for 'prostitution', showing a list of 19 of 628 results. The first result is titled 'WHO'S YOUR SUGAR DADDY?' and is an article by Jones, Abigail. The article is from Newsweek Global, 10/10/2014, Vol. 163 Issue 14, p60-63. 4p. 3 Color Photographs. The document type is 'Article'. The subjects listed are 'MAN-woman relationships -- Moral & ethical aspects', 'AGE disparity in sexual relationships', 'DATING (Social customs)', 'HUMAN sexuality', 'PROSTITUTION', 'DADDIES Date Babies (Film)', 'DOCUMENTARY films', and 'PARINDA Wanitwat'. The abstract states: 'The article discusses the phenomenon of sugar dating, in which an older participant provides financial support to a younger participant in return for companionship and/or sex. Topics include a discussion of whether sugar dating should be considered prostitution or a relationship much like traditional marriages for money, and the documentary "Daddies Date Babies" by Parinda Wanitwat about five female sugar babies and their sugar daddies.' On the left side of the interface, there are links for 'Detailed Record', 'HTML Full Text', and 'PDF Full Text (4.6MB)'. On the right side, there is a 'Tools' menu with options for 'Add to folder', 'Print', 'E-mail', 'Save', 'Cite', 'Export', 'Create Note', 'Permalink', and 'Share'. At the bottom right, there is a large red number '16'.

Points of View: This article describes how a young woman was able to get through school by joining the sex industry. The article claims one doesn't always have to have sex with clients, gets to go on fancy trips and can earn quick money, and may even find real love. The article does not mention the extreme violence, PTSD, and lifelong trauma most individuals in prostitution endure.

Middle School: “The Sex Queen of LA” found in EBSCO product Academic Search Premier glamorizing prostitution, bragging about how much money can be made and linking to websites that attempt to sign up young women for “safe prostitution” and for participation in pornography. The article also gives tips to “pimps” and “madams” for how to manage a group of girls in prostitution.

With the connection to a whale like Uzan – the archetypal “easy client,” a filthy-rich guy more interested in courtship than fornication – Nici’s business went supernova. She already had a line into the Playboy Mansion; one of Hefner’s girlfriends was willing to solicit other Playmates and girlfriends, who are given a weekly “allowance” of $1,000. Now, when the girls heard they could make $25,000 by flying to Turkey for a few days, there was no shortage of them willing to sign up. “Hakan would send me an instant message at 3 a.m., and I would have to get four Playmates ready right away,” says Nici. “The first flight to Istanbul was around 6 a.m. through Paris, and sometimes I’d wake them up in the middle of the night for that flight.”

The girls were thrilled: “It was like a paid vacation,” says Angelica, a porn star who shared a room with a Playmate in an Istanbul hotel that looked like a castle. “There were eight girls there, and I was doing the math: like, at least $200,000 is being spent here, and these guys don’t even care.” Before Uzan was accused of embezzling billions from his companies and became an international fugitive, Nici estimates, he spent $3 million in one year on her services.

TEMPTED TO TOUCH

Motherhood can be very demanding, especially for women who are juggling earning money, making time for a significant other and maintaining a household. But that doesn't mean a mom should feel guilty about indulging in exceptionally rewarding moments of self-gratification—regularly. Whether you're with a partner or handling business solo, bedroom accessories can improve playtime. Take your sex life to the next level with these eight accessories:

WEEK, WEEK, WEEK

WAKE UP
Many sex toys focus on giving women a clitoral orgasm, but the Fiera Arouser for Her (fiera.com; $260) is worn for a few minutes prior to intercourse and is designed to help boost physical pleasure and increase sexual desire: Think of it as foreplay. The gentle suction of the Fiera holds the device on the vagina, promoting a mind-to-body connection.

ENJOY STIMULATION

Sleek yet powerful in its delivery, the Mona Wave by Lela (lela.com; $179) is perfect for the woman who prefers G-spot arousal. Its rotating head mimics the motion of a lover's finger in a movement that encourages waves of intense peaks. Use the Mona Wave during self-exploration to connect with your most sensitive erogenous zone.

ENHANCE YOUR MOVES
Having sex in different positions can have better payoff with the help of the Jaz by Liberator (liberator.com; $49). Translation: You'll have a more intense orgasm. Made of dense foam covered in micro suede, this small pillow-like ramp intensifies missionary and "from-behind" positions. If your lovemaking has become routine, the Jaz makes experimenting with new—even slightly acrobatic—ideas fun and easy.

LOVE AND BALANCE YOUR YONI

segmented dual-stimulation toy has a penrod design and flickering tip that's great to use on the U-spot (the erogenous zone between the clitoris and urethra). Bunny ears vibrate to stimulate the clitoris during internal use. The best thing about this multitasking toy? It builds more explosive orgasms.

PRACTICE SELF-PLEASURE
For the woman who wants to keep her self-satisfaction discreet, the Kandi Kisses Vibe by Bedroom Kandi (shop.bedroomkandi.com; $59) is ideal. Designed to look like a lipstick, the sleek massager packs plenty of power with three speeds and four patterns. Bonus: Kandi Kisses is the ideal accessory for travelers.

RELAX YOUR BODY
A collection of bedroom accessories isn't complete without the classic: Magic Massager by ter, the antimicrobial Joyboxx by Passionate Playground (joyboxx.com; $34.99) is a must-have. This storage unit has a unisex design, internal ventilation and a USB charging hole.

A different "lipstick": Kandi Kisses

Middle School: Article describes that neighbors thought someone was getting hurt at a residence, but the couple glamorized it as their “hot times with our BDSM-play.”

Squeals from spanking games keeping neighbours awake

Section: A&E > Miss Lonelyhearts, Columns, pg. E4

Miss Lonelyhearts

Dear Miss Lonelyhearts: My boyfriend and I often play spanking games, and we were really looking forward to hot times with our BDSM-play at the cottage we rented for a month. It turns out noise carries across the water and we have to turn up our music if we want to disguise what we're up to.

This morning we got a noise complaint from a woman who said she didn't sleep all night. She was afraid somebody was getting hurt here. Of course they were because we take turns spanking each other! I said with a grin, "Well, you might have heard some delighted shrieking, but that's about it." She blushed and backed off the bottom step. Now what can we do about our neighbour problem? We still have almost three more weeks left out here. Write back ASAP.

- Mr. Spanker and Miss Spankee, Lake Country

Dear Mr. and Miss Spankee: If anyone else complains, tell them you and your partner both enjoy playing games and you're sorry you have been too noisy while having so much fun. That should give them something to think about. And, if your neighbour enjoys gossiping, she can report her suspicions to the other neighbours and be the star of the kaffeeklatsch. This kind of gossip guarantees some other neighbours will drop in. You can just deny everything and say you were just playing Risk and enjoyed putting the first lady on when she came visiting.

Dear Miss Lonelyhearts: The people next door at the lake have their cottage for sale and there have been no bites because it needs some small repairs and a paint job. My wife and I offered them a low price to take it off their hands. They accused us of lowballing old friends. We would really like to have that cottage, as ours is too small with grandchildren coming along. What should I do now that they're mad at us and will probably dig their heels in about the price?

- Too Late To Buy It? Lake Winnipeg

Dear Too Late to Buy It: You hurt and insulted your cottage friends with your cheap offer, so apologize. Say you're sorry, you really like their cottage and have enjoyed their friendship over the years. Then offer them a fair price, and see what happens. Buyers generally know what "fair" actually is, don't you? If you don't, ask their realtor. But be aware some realtors let their sellers ask silly high prices at first and bring the number down when it isn't selling.

Dear Miss Lonelyhearts: My husband and I have been staying at my recently deceased aunt's farm for a few weeks this summer as the EBSCO regularly features sexually explicit content from publishers who claim that they target only adult readers, such Men's Health, Cosmopolitan Magazine, Redbook. Why are these publishers included in products for K-12 schools?

The screenshot shows the EBSCOhost search interface. At the top, there is a navigation bar with links for 'New Search', 'Dictionary', 'Publications', 'Subjects', and 'More'. On the right side of the navigation bar are links for 'Sign In', 'Folder', 'Preferences', 'Languages', 'Help', and 'Exit'. Below the navigation bar, the search bar contains the text 'Searching: MAS Ultra - School Edition' and a 'Search' button. #### 10. HIS TESTICLES

Imagine if your husband slipped a silk scarf between your legs with such a light touch you weren't quite sure you actually felt something, except that you most definitely knew you wanted more. That's the kind of subtly exquisite feeling you can elicit from a man by handling his prized possessions with tender loving care. Come to think of it, he might love the scarf too. It's amazing how often you hear guys say that their wives ignore their testicles during sex play. Most likely, you're wary of inflicting harm—and the testicles are indeed delicate—but as long as you don't pinch, squeeze, or dig in your nails, all you need worry about is how much pleasure your man can take. He'll love it if you lightly scratch his testicles and gently pull or rub his scrotum. If you want to turn up the sexual volume, try caressing him wearing satin gloves or sneaking undercover to stake out the new territory with your mouth and tongue.

11. HIS PERINEUM AND ANUS

As your fingers travel just past the testicles toward the anus, you'll arrive at a richly endowed little patch of skin called the perineum that's capable of producing something near bliss when lightly stroked. Because a man's prostate gland sits directly above it, massaging the perineum in a light circular motion sends major shivers inside. Do this just at the point of orgasm, and he'll be struggling for air.

Now, your husband may not admit it, but he might give up his firstborn if your fingers would continue along their merry way to his anus. It's not only sensitive to touch, but the taboo factor makes it instantly erotic. However, if your husband doesn't like surprises, this little side trip is not one you'd want to just spring on him. "A lot of guys associate anything anal with homosexuality and are repulsed," says psychologist Bernie Zilbergeld, Ph.D., author of Male Sexuality. "It's a psychological thing, not physical." Also, some guys can't get the image of a doctor snapping a latex glove out of their mind. If you're unsure about your husband's reaction, discuss it with him first to see if the idea interests him.

12. HIS BUTT

A man's buns are pretty darn sexy when clothed, but get them naked and you're talking about the ultimate sex toys. And you've got plenty of opportunity to tease them silly, especially out in public where he can't do a thing about it. Cop a feel as your husband is heading out the door, or rub up against him with a playful bump-and-grind, or give him a good squeeze and smack. The thing about the butt is you can play like you mean it—it's built for rough handling, so go ahead and grab, pinch, dig in your nails, and yes, spank him if that's what you think he's secretly hankering for. It's the kind of pain some men would practically beg for, and you may enjoy inflicting it, for all you know.

“I’ma put something in your ass,” he said in a low voice. “Put something in there that’ll shut you right the fuck up.”

I almost screamed again when I saw what he had in his hand.

That crazy motherfucker was holding a gun.

And not one of those regular old Saturday night specials either. I’d seen this kind of gun before, it was Seagram’s favorite piece. A .44 caliber Magnum with a hair trigger. The kind of shit you roll with when you wanna blow a niggahs brains out through the back of his head.

Hurricane cursed and slapped the barrel across my mouth, busting open my bottom lip. I swallowed blood and panicked when I saw the crazy look in his eyes. My teeth were clenched but he forced me to open them shits, shoving that barrel halfway down my throat, then taking it out and cracking it first against my collarbone and then dead on the tip of my elbow. I yelped and rolled over, balling up in a knot and cradling the black pain that ran from my shoulder all the way down to my fingertips. Suddenly he was on top of me again, and the cold metal was being pushed between

Shame-free tips on increasing your sexual health and pleasure

While this is advice for those who identify as “bottoms/ anyone who has anal sex should have an understanding of the process involved in successful bottoming. It will help you be a better “top” ; experiences.

The act of bottoming is a true art, and whether it's your first attempt or you've been experimenting with it for quite some time, analyzing your readiness and the proper techniques not only allow you to reach heightened sexual pleasuring practices.

If you've never tried bottoming, but you're curious, let's just address straight away that it won't always just happen right then and there. Successful and pleasurable bottoming takes time and practice through dilation exercises, tra control of the pelvic floor.

The good news? Bottoming shouldn't hurt Of course, it maybe uncomfortable at first and you might initially question how there could ever be pleasure in it – something that happens with vaginal sex the first time as well-but like anyth following a few simple guidelines to enhance this sexual practice. I often tell patients that great bottoms have been doing it for quite some time, with many first experiencing it in their youth. Unfortunately, no one showed us the right sexual education class. Still, it's never too late to learn, and we all enjoy new and positive sexual experiences. Here's my 101 guide to bottoming:

BEGIN WITH DILATION

Get yourself an anal trainer kit, and start training for dilation two to three times a week (for as little as five minutes each time). Use a water-based lubricant and start with the smallest plug. Insert just to the point of pressure. Hold it engage the muscles. Allow yourself to relax before removing the plug, then re-lubricate and re-insert to the point of pressure. Repeating this process will prove successful over time, so don't get discouraged if the first time you or Repeat the process three to five times. The key is to remember there are three sets of muscles that need to relax for a successful entry. Think of it as a tunnel, and the entire tunnel needs to be a well-lubed cylinder. We don't advis plug and leaving it in on the first try, because removal may be difficult, which could cause tearing if after four to five sessions you can insert that size without any issues, you're ready to graduate to the next size. Don't forget to enjoy it if process, go for it! Not only is it a pleasurable side effect to your dilation training, but you can start to channel your orgasm anally and begin to gain control overtime.

READY FOR THE REAL THING

When you've successfully mastered a medium size plug, you're ready to graduate to the real thing. Congratulations! It's always best to start off with you in total control and a partner you trust to be pa you're comfortable with. Some people use dilators first, either with or without a sexual partner, to “warm up” and remind themselves of the practiced techniques. Once the engines have been started, the bottom needs to sit on the entry. Use plenty of lubricant and remember the different sets of muscles that need to be released to allow access. Start off using the same technique of inserting until you feel pressure, hold it there, pull out, re-lubricate and repeat here as well Being on top of the penis really allows for you to determine your level of comfort. If pain occurs, you can stop, call it a day, and try again another time. It's not worth causing pain or a potential injury.

GRADUATING TO NEW POSITIONS

Once you have fully received the penis, the last hurdle is to add new positions into the mix, like doggy-style. Now, be sure to take this easy to begin with – it's an intense position and tops can get mastered receiving to minimize any injury and maximize pleasure. Start with you receiving on top and gaining control of your muscles before moving around to new positions.

INJURY HAPPENS TO THE BEST OF US Proper techniques are obviously a must, but even brand new cars can break down. The most common issue related to anal sex trauma are tears, also known as anal fissures. If this h:
